

Kendra Carr, Senior Data Associate at The Chartis Group

Kendra Carr is a Senior Data Associate at The Chartis Group with over five years of healthcare research, data analytics, and data visualization experience. She also has ten years of experience working to address social determinants of health and health inequities across both social and healthcare systems. At Chartis, Kendra transforms data into insights for clients through advanced analytics, model-building, and interactive data visualizations. Her experience includes providing analytical support to academic medical centers, national health systems, and regional hospitals through engagements in strategy, performance, and business intelligence. Specifically, Kendra has assisted engagements that include service line planning, workforce and financial performance improvement, and telehealth adoption.

Prior to joining Chartis, Kendra worked at Beacon Health Options, where she contributed to an innovative, cross-systems data integration project involving state agencies and nonprofits to identify and analyze complex health disparities among the behavioral health Medicaid population. Previously, she has worked as a research fellow on patient-centered studies where she utilized qualitative and quantitative techniques to analyze housing insecurity and evaluate community-based participatory research models. Prior to working in healthcare, Kendra was the Director of Development at the Massachusetts Housing & Shelter Alliance where she managed the nonprofit's fundraising department.

Kendra holds a Master of Public Health from the Yale School of Public Health and a Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology from the University of New Hampshire.
