

Rhonda Mann, Healthcare Marketing and Communications Consultant

Rhonda Mann has been communicating about health, medical research and wellness for more than 30 years, most recently for Tufts Medical Center. Prior she served as a broadcast news reporter/producer at a number of New England television stations, including WCVB (ABC) Boston. In addition to hospital marketing and communications for Tufts Medical Center and Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Rhonda also served as Director of Communications for the Massachusetts Office for Health and Human Services. Rhonda graduated from UNH with her bachelors in Communications and went on to secure her master's in Health Communication from Boston University. Her career has included many accolades including multiple journalism and marketing awards.